

Avoiding Confusion and Challenging Misconceptions in Primary History

www.eltsh-tmet.uk

The training will be led by Andrew Wrenn, a knowledgeable history specialist and an honorary fellow of the Historical Association. He is an experienced teacher, trainer and writer, former LA adviser, and author and co-author of educational materials, articles and books.

This series of practical webinars will identify what confuses pupils in primary history and show how such confusion and misconceptions can be avoided and challenged. Through examples of careful planning and activities, the webinars will show how pupils can develop an accurate and nuanced understanding of chronology and change, cause and consequence, historical interpretations, and significance, in line with the National Curriculum and current Ofsted expectations. The webinars will also demonstrate how best to use sources in the classroom and improve pupil handling of original evidence.
